Wheat yields rise

By JAMES A. SMITH
Extension Agent

World wheat yields are projected at 463 million tons, up 5 percent. This should put world wheat stocks at comfortable levels.

USDA anticipates that this will be the third record year of wheat exports. USDA economists are saying we should anticipate $3.70 to $4.00 wheat averages for 1981.

Here are some tips if you are planning to plant soybeans following small grain:

1. Be sure you have a straw chopper and a straw spreader on your combine.

2. Run a coulter ahead of the planter to cut through the straw.

3. Plant the seed in contact with mineral soil and cover deep enough to avoid herbicide injury.

4. Spray with a good contact herbicide to kill existing vegetation and a good residual to give the soybeans a head start.

5. Narrow the rows so the middles will cover rapidly.

6. Now is the time to get your machinery ready and your chemicals ordered.

Row spacing gets pretty critical-never more than 30 inches apart and 18 to 24 inches are better.

When beans follow wheat, they do not grow as high as conventional planted beans. Planting closer together increases the beam height and more quickly provides a canopy to inhibit weed growth.

"The South 40" by JAMES A. SMITH EXTENSION AGENT

This extra cover occurs as the population is increased. After June 20 you need 170,000 to 200,000 plants per acre.

Use a good contact spray following small grain to provide a weed-free seed bed.

There are two herbicides cleared for this purpose-Paraquat and Roundup. Use at least 40 gallons of water per acre-better yet with 50 gallons. Penetration of the mulch and stubble is extremely important-spray jet nozzles directed downward are very useful with 40 - 50 pounds of pressure.

If ther are perennial weeds to contend with-better use Roundup.

There have been 53 brucellosis infected herds found in 39,000 Virginia herds. North Carolina has 50,000 herds and zero infected herds.

The Utah State University Veterinary News reports that ringworm in cattle can be controlled by using Captan (Orthocide Garden Fungicide 50%), a spray mixture of 0.45 - 1.5 lbs. Captan to 20 gallons of water. Apply at 400 - 450 pounds of pressure using an average of 1.5 gallons of solution per animal. It should be repeated several times.

Agri-News says there is a list of questions that job applicants may not be asked. If the employee asks the wrong question-no matter how well intentioned, you risk a discrimination complaint.

To be on the safe side the application form or interview should not ask these questions:

*Race, sex, color or citizenship

*Marital status

*Number and age of children, intent to have children or provisions for child care

*Age or date of birth

*Arrests

*Credit, garnishment or public assistance status

*Height and weight

*Political or religious affiliations or activities

*Employment status of spouse

*Type of military discharge.

Prepare sweaters for storage now

By SHIRLEY W. WALTON
Extension Agent

It Is Time To Prepare Sweaters for Storage

The care you give the sweaters that kept you warm during the winter depends on construction and fiber content. It is now time to store winter-weight sweaters but first treat each to a good cleaning, this will add years to both the life and look of the sweaters.

Check the labels for care instructions. Most sweaters are washable, but how to wash them depends on the type of yarn and construction.

Before washing a sweater, examine for any needed repair work and heavily soiled areas. If there are snagged loops, disguise them by carefully pulling the loops to the inside of the garment with a crochet hook or a device especially designed and sold for this purpose.

Pretreat stained areas. For soil lines around the inside of the collar or cuffs, rub gently with a liquid detergent or a past of detergent and water.

Wool and wool blends need special care. First trace the outline of the sweater on clean paper in order to reshape after laundering. If a sweater is labeled machine washable, follow the manufacturer's directions or use a warm wash with gentle agitation, short wash time and a regular spin. Wool or wool blends not treated for shrinkage control may be laundered by using the blanket soak method that keeps agitation at a minimum. To do this, fill the machine with warm or cold water, depending on the degree of soil and color. Add detergent and agitate to dissolve completely. Stop the washer, put the sweaters in the machine and let them soak for 10 to 15 minutes. Turn control to drain and spin for about one minute. Fill the washer for deep rinse, add fabric softener and let the machine finish the cycle automatically.

To hand wash woolen sweaters, use warm water and gently squeeze the suds through the garment. Support the sweater with both hands in washing and rinsing to prevent the weight of the water from causing stretching. Avoid a scrubbing, wringing or twisting action. Rinse in the same manner until the water is clear. Use fabric softener in the last rinse. Squeeze water out. Roll the sweater in a bath towel to absorb excess moisture.

Wool and wool blend sweaters should be dried on a flat surface away from direct heat and sunlight. Use the paper outline as a guide to reshape the sweater. Then as it is drying, gently finger press to retain the original size.

Manmade fibers such as nylon and acrylic are generally machine washable, but you must carefully check the manufacturer's recommendation on the care label. The cycle, wash temperature and the time will depend on the fiber content, construction of the sweater, degree of soil and colorfastness. Washers are available with a knit or perma-press cycle, specifically designed for washing these items as well as knits that are delicately constructed. Turn sweaters inside out and use a fabric softener to reduce static electricity build-up. These may be dried in the dryer on low heat or perma-press cycle.

Cotton and cotton blends are machine washable and dryable. Use hot or warm water for washing, depending on the color and the degree of soil. Avoid over-drying. Cotton knits may shrink.

To store sweaters, fold with shoulders and arms across and down the back, bottom under the top. The front stays flat this way and creases are minimal. Avoid hanging sweaters as this causes stretching and distortion. Place sweaters in a plastic or cloth bag to protect them from dust.

Have a good week!

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Orange Blossoms

[Approximately 5 dozen]

3 eggs
1½ cups sugar
Several drops yellow food coloring
½ c. water
1½ c. flour
1½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla

Mix above ingredients as you would cake batter. Bake at 350° in small greased muffin pans - one teaspoonful in each. (I use slightly more than 1 tsp.) Cook about 10 minutes. (Don't let them get brown and crusty!)

While hot, dip in the following glaze:

1½ lb. confectioner's sugar
Juice of 4 oranges (2 cups juice)
Juice of 1 lemon

Mix until smooth.

Note: (I use frozen orange juice instead of fresh.)

This is being run again because of numerous requests.

Courtyard Entrance Sets the Stage

Convential Plan With A Touch Of Spain

FEATURE HOMES

© By W. D. FARMER

The courtyard entrance is accented by wrought iron grill work and leads to stoop and then to wide foyer. A partial view is from here to formal living area. The living area is shown with a vaulted ceiling and ridge beam. The adjacent formal dining room has a flat ceiling.

The family room is also from foyer. It features a recessed desk area with book shelves, fireplace with ash dump and gas jet, open rail stair to basement, double garage entry and screened porch access. The laundry room is set aside in this area also and the breakfast and kitchen are to the rear. The kitchen is U-shape with built-in appliances included.

There are three large bedrooms, each with an abundance of closets and direct bath access. A half bath is shown from central hall for daytime use.

The exterior is accented by courtyard wall, wraught iron, wood spindles and bay areas with shelves inside.

The plan is Number 2349. It includes 2,383 square feet of heated area. All W. D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency. For further information write W. D. Farmer, P.O. Box 49463, Atlanta, Ga. 30359.
